March 12, 2002 LB 1003

twenty-two days long and you're going to try to write a budget bill, you're going to try to raise taxes and you're going to try to deal with all of these bills that are called priority bills that have been moved already, you think you could do that in twenty-two days? If a special session were called and it was going to be twenty-two days long, you think anybody would lay out an agenda that ambitious for twenty-two days? You think you can tire me out in twenty-two days? You think you can stop me from doing what I'm promising you I'm going to do? Well, let us just put it to the test, put me to the test. Give Game and Parks what they want, but I will remember not just for the rest of this session. I will remember every time Game and Parks brings something here. And if you think that I'm unable to follow through on something from session to session that say I will, ask Larry Bare. I am not speaking out of the heat of the moment or because adrenaline is pumping or because I am excited and that, in days to come, the adrenaline will evaporate, the excitement will dissipate and I'll just become a good old accommodating collegial member of the Legislature, forget what Game and Parks has done and go along to get along. Well, with whom do I have to get along with on this floor? Whoever that person is, raise his or her hand. Somebody tentatively raised a half a hand (laugh) and part of a finger, not the wrong finger. But that's about all I'll get--a twitch here and there. I intend to offer my amendments until you vote cloture and, as Senator Beutler said, since his amendment is offered, you can vote cloture right away and you don't have to listen to me. And you can give Game and Parks...

SENATOR CUDABACK: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...everything they want. You can create an eighth position and I will love talking about how irresponsible the Legislature is by changing a system and they are so eager to shut me up that they did it without debate and no possibility to amend, and I will have won. You know how I win? When I make you do things against your own best interests. That's how I win, because I compel you to do it. Now, if I were Senator Beutler, I'd stand up and say, he can't compel you to do anything; let me, Senator Beutler, compel you to do something and we'll see if that Chambers is going to deliver as he said he
